Wellspring is an “urban fantasy” mashup of the gritty, high fantasy and Lovecraftian genres with a dash of 4X. Rome is crumbling; Britannia is invaded; the Western Empire is in freefall. As Romans scramble to defend their lives and way of life, they will discover dark forces at work that no living man or machine can hope to stop. The Empire of Rome is in the throes of two decades of crisis. First the Picts invaded Britannia, threatening the entire Western Empire. Then the Teutones invaded Gaul for the second time, and now Praetorians are being called in to defend Europe. Worst of all, Britannia is being infiltrated by a mysterious force of horsemen who are far more dangerous than the Picts and Teutones combined. Who are these horsemen, and what does their mission portend for the Empire? Play Information "What a frustrating beast it is to begin to play!...I struggle to write any sensible evaluations because the feeling that the designers...have again put together an impressive and expertly playable game...is countered by the feeling that, having taken the time to go through all this work, I should be spending that time in doing my own design work. And so, I can't really give this game a score of more than a 10, because I don't want to jeopardise it by claiming it could do better." [60 Games Under 30] "The game is fairly fast and well paced, and the basic mechanics are simple and easy to understand and don't take a long time to master.” [Stick of Dice] “A nice historical game with a good first impression...” [One of the Gnomes] “It’s a great set of rules that work very well with the one-on-one mechanics. I think they could definitely find a home with WFRM.” [Grain of Salt] “I came to Wellspring with a number of preconceived ideas about what I thought it would be like, only to find out that I had missed the mark. This is what makes Mantic Games so special, and part of why I will keep track of what they release. It’s just so damn easy to pick up and play and learn and keep learning. Some games take longer to get to know and take in, and I think this one c9d1549cdd

We have all been told in books or movies that these days, people from New Mexico are the closest to the Maya in all aspects, Culture, Language, history, etc. The Toltec was there, the way of life was their way. They left there at great prices and transferred their cultural heritage and spiritual teachings with them. As scientists have shown us, the Maya settled and slowly evolved slowly into the people we know today. We have the glyphs, the historic monuments, the codices and the Mayan history we know. Around the same time, a small group of Maya descendants left the north coast of Mayan territory in the middle of Lake Pátzcuaro. These Mayans, mostly about 15 years of age, went to the Sierra del Carmen near the Gulf of Mexico. They came from the shores of Lake Pátzcuaro, an area very rich with history and culture from the Toltec like period in Mexican history, history that captivated the imagination and activity of the Europeans at that time. The peninsula of Pichula and the peninsula of Coatalco were the island's principal settlements. To the south of Coatalco was the very old "centre of the universe" of the Native Americans, located in a small community called "The Butterfly". At the foot of Popocatepetl, the very stronghold of the Toltec, lies a small Bay by the name of Maniqui, sheltering from the wind and waves of the ocean a valley filled with lush forests, volcano's and precipices. It was here, with a group of young men, together with their elders, that they decided to leave their tribe to build a kingdom forever. This island, were they governed themselves. Was here that many years later, the men will return. The twins Hilario and Hilaria Echave: warriors, doctors, philosophers, priests and mystics, began a permanent ancestral cycle of healing and knowledge sharing with the world. Some of the men warned the great Mexican warrior god warrior Quetzalcoatl, of the cruel treatment the Maya were receiving from white people. And that in the future the Maya would be under foreign rule. Quetzalcoatl said "no, come along, now we are in a better place than you were in the Maya country". Nowadays this place is known as Yucatán. During the 16th century, under the leadership of Fray Diego de Landa Afandas Survival is an open world survival game. After a plague wipes out most of the population, you're one of the few survivors on an island called Afanda. Already at the beginning you realize that surviving isn't easy. To stay alive, you must search for equipment and provisions. To make life easier watch out for recipes to enhance your crafting skills. Hunger isn't the only threat awaiting you on Afandas. Danger is all around you. Be it in form of wild animals, walking dead or other players where you can never know is it a friend or a foe. Are you gonna make it? You've been watching too much K-pop. Now you're left asking yourself, "What's the point of everything?" Everything in life is meaningless. Why do you even have to get a job or pay your bills, when all you do is watch TV and take meaningless online quizzes? You're a meaningless, mindless drone of a human being, doing nothing but living a life of complete and utter superficiality. One day, you watch a TV show about a bright young boy who plays a musical instrument and can sing. You love the boy's voice, and you immediately get an idea: He needs to be on a music competition show. You quickly open up YouTube and begin searching for all the best Korean music competition shows. You find them, and the next day you dedicate all your time to watching them and taking timed online quizzes. Before you know it, you're one of the many, many contestants on the TV show, and your meaningless life is complete.
