“It’s an incredible experience to be able to play an official FIFA tournament using the technology we developed with the help of our players,” said FIFA Team Lead Michael Bergholz. “The high-intensity, high-momentum game of football demands a lot from the player, and now we can capture this data in-game and feed this information into our engine. We’re incredibly excited to deliver a new level of player immersion in the virtual world.” Activision Blizzard and EA Sports will demo the new approach for players at the Electronic Entertainment Expo (E3) from June 13 to 15 in Los Angeles. Visit www.e3.activisionblizzard.com to see the demo in action. FIFA Team Lead Michael Bergholz “This technology is a breakthrough for FIFA,” said FIFA Team Lead Michael Bergholz. “Using real-life players, we now have the opportunity to capture the intensity, speed and intensity of a full match. Our goal is to deliver the most authentic player performance and sensations in the game. We couldn’t be more excited for players to see this version.” How Does “HyperMotion Technology” Work? “The principle behind HyperMotion Technology is to collect all data from players in a complete match,” said Bergholz. “We then analyze this data to create realistic animations for our players and make them appear as if they’re actually playing the game. We’re able to create more nuanced match experiences, which means more realistic gameplay.” Experienced FIFA Team Lead Michael Bergholz “What’s even more significant is that our players, who play in tournament leagues and competitions on a weekly basis, are giving their input into the technology,” Bergholz continued. “We’re deeply integrating this technology into our game, which is why we’re showing it at E3 and why you’ll see this at future events.” EA SPORTS™ FIFA 20 is on sale now and it’s official: HyperMotion Technology brings the excitement of real-world footy to virtual life. FIFA Team Lead Michael Bergholz and EA SPORTS today announced FIFA 20 at Electronic Entertainment Expo (E3) 2019, with FIFA Team

FIFA is a football management simulation game. The player picks a national team and gets to lead them through a season of international matches. The primary game mode requires the player to pick a team, submit formations and tactics, set salary cap levels, then play and manage matches until their team wins. There are several more game modes available depending on what the player wants to do with their team. There are also several gameplay improvements available for all modes. Below are key features of what FIFA is about. POWERED BY FOOTBALL™ • REAL FOOTBALL GRAPHICS™ EA SPORTS FIFA 22 brings the game even closer to the real thing with new realistic visuals, immersive sound and new animations to create a football match like never before. Players can now see all of the ball with improved ball physics and receive feedback through the crowd and the referee. All teams have a unique look, and every stadium is entirely real-world recreated. The new camera angles provide an unprecedented level of immersion during matches. • UNPARALLELED HUMAN SKILLS™ The FIFA series is known for featuring the most detailed football simulation technology on any platform. EA SPORTS FIFA 22 introduces a brand new “ID” system, which allows the player to control a team of over 50 players by pressing the ID button. Players can run, dribble, and pass the ball like never before using new techniques and skills like “volley slams,” dribbles, and “upper body passes” to accurately simulate the game. The new “control” system allows for 1:1 control of the pitch through high level assists to help improve player control. Overall game feel is also improved by implementing EA's new contextual commands and game improvements, which allow players to control the game with even more ease. The human intelligence has never been higher in a football game. • ENGINE EA SPORTS FIFA 22 introduces a brand new ENGINE developed by EA DICE. FIFA has always been known for delivering the best-looking graphics and with this new engine, the game now looks even better. NEW GENERIC GRAPHICS • BIGGER, BETTER, COLORS EA SPORTS FIFA 22 introduces the first FIFA in history to have bigger, better, and more colorful stadiums and teams. While the player can control individual players, new visual effects will give them a more unique look and feel. • NEW WAY
