Trying to find a used truck without a VIN can be a challenge. If you are looking for a used truck, we recommend you check out our truck check database before you buy a new one. We have over 10,000 trucks listed from 4 years old to the 2015 Ford F-150. We cannot guarantee we have what you are looking for, but if we do, we will give you a quick phone call to let you know what year it is and how to get more information on it. You can then decide if you want to continue the search for the next year or if you want to buy this truck. When it comes time to replace a truck cap and you are shopping around, make sure to have a TruckVault truck cap to look at. No other truck cap company out there comes close to the quality, service, and performance of TruckVault. Make sure you visit us at www.TruckVault.com to see the wide variety of TruckVault truck caps for sale. We are more than happy to assist you with anything you might need, from shipping to us, to getting the truck cap to you, it is all possible. Yes! Occasionally we have demonstrator and show models available. Someone in your area may also be trading vehicles and looking to sell their existing TruckVault. Your TruckVault sales person can help you with this, and can be reached at (800) 967-8107 or by email through our contact page. Check out our TruckVault Outlet page which we update regularly with various used TruckVault products! To save yourself from having to wait through lengthy check out procedures, most merchants sell truck campers online. In order to make sure that you buy the right truck camper shell at the right price, you should do a little homework. If you know roughly what truck it is, you can check the vehicle identification number (VIN) to find the current part number. If your new truck has a permanent VIN number you can call your motor vehicle dealer to find the correct part number. If your truck has a removable VIN, it should be on the registration card. If the dealers number is not on there, it is a sign that the truck was stolen and is probably damaged. The way to search for the new part number in the registration card will vary depending on the type of truck you have. You can either look for the words or in the part numbers in the listing. Some dealers now place the VIN in the listing.

I had put on about 3k miles on it for the first time last year, and it hasn't been driven since. It has been in storage for the winter, so I started it last week, and let it idle for a few minutes to warm up before putting it in gear. I then shifted it into 1st gear and decided to put it in neutral to see if I could start it. I could not - it would not start at all. I hadn't been in the engine compartment in some time so I started inspecting the interior looking for anything that may have loosened up and lead to the cause of the problem. One of the top bolts had split apart to the point where it would not fit back into place and was partially stripped. I thought the bolt was broken, but it didn't feel like it. I pulled it all the way out, and when removed, the cylinder head was unphastic. It looked like it had been run over with a ball peen hammer. As I finished inspecting the area, I noticed that the bolt had a small diameter of a half inch, however the head was only about 3/16" in diameter. I was convinced that the bolt had had been beaten with a ball peen hammer, so I put it back in and tried to put it back into place, but was unsuccessful. I tried four or five times before giving up. The bolt seemed to be wedged into place after driving on it with my fingers. I decided to look up the part to see what a half inch or 3/16" bolt looked like. That's when I happened upon this website, and found what I was looking for. I measured it, and it was 3/16". I then looked up the part, and the pic didn't match. It wasn't 3/16", it was 7/16", so the only way I could be sure was to use a file to try to get the old head off of the bolt. I wrapped a towel around the bolt while filing, and the towel pulled the head off! So, needless to say, I have a brand new head now. I will post pictures when I have them uploaded. Sec8ef588b
