I am wondering why this doesn't work. I am creating a rather simple database for reading RSS feeds. There are these columns for fields which are static, and thus don't change: create table news (id integer not null, title varchar(200) not null, content text not null, link varchar(200), pubDate timestamp without time zone not null); create table links (id integer not null, source varchar(200), link varchar(200), creationDate timestamp without time zone not null, totalIds integer not null); I wanted a where clause that would enforce the pubDate not to be in the future. So I used: alter table news add constraint fk_news_pubDate_links_id foreign key (pubDate) references links(pubDate); However, when I try to run it using psql, it gives me this error: ERROR: syntax error at or near "references" LINE 2: references links(pubDate); ^ It seems to me that the foreign key constraint is ok, because without it I get an syntax error. Why does it complain
